Challenges & Some Easy Wins

Healthcare executives have had more sleepless than restful nights in recent times. Combined underpayments from Medicare and Medicaid to hospitals continue to increase. Healthcare continues to see an increase in providing uncompensated care. Diagnostic errors are increasing, and likely causing more harm to patients than all other medical errors combined, with the most common among them missing early cancer and heart disease. During covid, double shifts, and staffing concerns destroyed staffing models and budgets…..increasing numbers of physicians and care givers are reporting they are burned out, and looking at alternative career options. What's the light at the end of the tunnel, what are the strategies and technologies that are showing a favorable ROI?

Hospital At Home Are We Asking The Right Questions

Should hospitals reconsider how and where they deliver care to patients? Some are seeing the hospital-at-home model as a promising approach to improve value. What is the ROI on hospital-at-home is the ROI there for patients who need acute-level care to receive care in their homes, rather than in a hospital. Does this care delivery model reduce costs, improve outcomes and enhance the patient experience?

Delivering a Seamless Digital Healthcare Experience with Full Stack Observability

Digital transformation impacts every aspect of care delivery, from the administrative centers, to the hospital campuses and primary care clinics where patients are seen. As new capabilities are added, some services must migrate to a cloud-first or hybrid cloud model based on business requirements. Ensuring uptime, availability and fidelity of patient and provider experience becomes increasingly more difficult in such a dynamic environment. Learn how Full-Stack Observability to ease the burden and dymistify your applications and technology stack, whether on-prem, in the cloud, or both
